The National Gallery of Modern Art, Bengaluru (NGMA Bengaluru) is the most recent of the three NGMAs to open to the public. The setting is perfect—it is housed in the gracious Manikyavelu mansion in the midst of a beautiful three and half acre garden in the centre of Bengaluru. The Gallery was inaugurated in February 2009. The first major event in the new Gallery was the showcasing of the prestigious exhibition from the V&A Museum, London, “Indian Life and Landscape by Western Artists” during April – May 2010.

There has been no looking back since then. Many interesting cultural and educational events have been held in the ensuing months and NGMA Bengaluru is now very much in the news. The recently started art reference library, the interesting events organized in the auditorium and the educational programmes arranged around the collection of marvelous paintings have made NGMA Bengaluru a focal point for art lovers.

Welcome to the first issue of the e-newsletter of NGMA Bengaluru. This newsletter is a quarterly which will be released in the months of September, December, March and June.

Art Education Programme for School Children

Since most schools do not have a functional arts education, it was thought worthwhile encouraging schools to bring their students to the Gallery by preparing innovative art education modules, which targeted children of different age groups. The objective of this programme is to hone the observation skills of school children and to improve their appreciation of art.

As part of the activities, and in accordance with the needs of the children and the schools, storytelling and visual enactment of paintings by the children have also been included. A complete year's list of events has been drawn up and interested schools have been allotted days for visiting the Gallery. Many children have written after their visits to say how much they enjoyed their visit to the Gallery.

An extremely happy outcome of this venture is that Government schools have responded with great enthusiasm. Every Friday has been reserved for children from Government schools and a detailed calendar has been drawn up for every Friday from the first week of August 2010 till the last week of February 2011, indicating the name of the school and the number and grades of the children. Many of the children have shown promising talent and have drawn pictures which are remarkable in their likeness to the original works of art.

Guided Gallery Walks

The bi-weekly guided tours for discerning gallery viewers were started in August. The tours are conducted by the two assistant curators, and are held on Wednesday afternoons and Saturday mornings. They offer insights into the various nuances of Indian art. The Wednesday tour introduces the language of visual arts and covers form, harmony, color, balance and other key aspects of art. The tour on Saturday offers a chronological history of Indian art, starting with the Mughal miniatures, to the formation of the Bengal school and the nationalist uprising in the arts, till the present day. Though the initial response to these guided tours was muted, word soon got around, and a sizeable number of people now undertake the tours every week. The feedback on these tours has been extremely encouraging.

Film screening

The NGMA auditorium has been almost continuously in the spotlight since June, when the Colors film festival, began on the 6th of the month. Seven films on artists were screened during the festival which was a collaborative venture with Bangalore Film Society. Previous to that, on the 5th of June, a special preview of films on environment and climate change was held in collaboration with the British Council. In July the auditorium became a hub of activity with the Shakespeare Film Festival which was organized in partnership with the British Council and the Bangalore Film Society.

A total of thirteen films have been selected for this festival, many of them from the BBC production of Shakespeare's plays. In addition, there are films by directors such as Tom Stoppard, Aki Kaurismaki and Kurosawa, who have adapted some of the plays into films. The festival, which has brought avid film fans, lovers of literature, as well as general viewers streaming into the auditorium, continued till the 18th of September.

Talks and seminars

NGMA Bengaluru has been holding several well attended talks and lectures by eminent scholars and writers

Vikramajit Ram

On 16th June Shaheen Merali, a curator of international repute, gave a slide lecture on Cinema Verite Redux. Dr. Annapurna Garimella gave a lecture titled Miniature as style, a small revolution? on 13th August. A reading Stupa Song by Vikramajit Ram from his book—Dreaming Vishnus—A Journey through Central India, was organized in collaboration with the Mahua Art Foundation on the 28th of August.

NGMA art reference library

The NGMA library has finally begun to take shape! The process of acquiring books and stocking the library is under way, and a few hundred books are already in place. Interested readers are welcome to browse, and give their suggestions on books and periodicals which could be purchased for the library. There is no membership fee, but borrowing of the books is not permitted, as the library is solely for reference purposes. Flanked by beautiful wide balconies shaded with trees, the library is ideal for a day of browsing—more so since it is strategically placed right above the cafeteria!
